CHASKA THURSDAY SEPT. 5 1872.

The Mass Convention.

At the mass convention held at Waconia Sept. 2d, the County was well represented by Liberals and Democrats, and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

The nominees of the Democratic party at Watertown were unanimously endorsed. A committee of five Liberal Republicans to act hereafter in connection with the Democratic County Committee was appointed. Resolutions were adopted endorsing Greeley and Brown.

The convention was ably and eloquently addressed by Messrs. Peck, Libeau and Cullen.

County Commissioners.

We neglected to state last week, in the proceedings of the late County Democratic Convention, that Peter Barthel was chosen candidate for Commissioner in the 2d district and John Etzell in the 3d. Both good men.

Short answers to False Assumptions.

The administration press and speakers predicate their whole claims to popular support on a few assumptions which admit of decided answers.

First—That Grant is entitled to all the credit of putting down the rebellion.
The soldiers did that job.

Second—That Grant has paid a part of the national debt. The people did that by paying extra taxes.

Third—That we are at peace with foreign countries. What cause exists for war? Why should there be fighting without any reason for it?

Fourth—That the country is prosperous. What has Grant done to make it so? Has he done anything but levy and collect taxes, and expend the proceeds? Are the people prosperous because of taxes, or in spite of them? As a matter of fact are they really prospering at all, take one year with another?

Fifth—That the country has a safe, reliable, and perfect currency. Good or bad, it was inaugurated years before Grant was made President. He has never made a suggestion or recommendation on the subject that Congress has adopted, or the country approved. How, then, happens it that he is entitled to any credit for it?

Divested of cant and pretence every plea for Grant resolves itself into just such absurdities. Instead of originating and organizing, he has scarcely had sense enough to make use of what others have created and executed. The government has been allowed to drift, because he lacked capacity to use the helm. If he had shown a hundredth part of the interest in public affairs that he has in taking personal presents, there should be some evidence of it. If he has, let some of his advocates produce the proof, or forever hereafter hold their peace. —Pioneer.

HENRY WILSON'S KNOW NOTH-INGISM.

The Minneapolis Times has the following item:
While Henry Wilson denies that he was ever a member of a Know-Nothing Lodge, Mr. Charles Hoag, Superintendent of Hennepin County Schools, says he sat with Wilson for a week, in the National Know-Nothing Convention at Philadelphia. We don't exactly say that Wilson lies—but we believe Mr.
Hoag tells the truth.

Mr. Hoag is sustained by Gen.
Albert Pike, who says Wilson sat in the Philadelphia Convention during the whole session, and helped settle the platform; and that to be there, Gen. Pike said "he had to have the sign, word, and grip, and necessarily had taken the same oath which we all had taken on entering the Order."

—The railway postal service increased during the year ending June 30, 1872, 7,397 miles. There were at that time 54,471 miles of railroad mail service in operation.

Miss Anna E. Dickinson is hard at work upon a new book. She will, of course, be in the field as a lecturer, when the season opens. Those who want her services must address her at her home in Philadelphia, as she always arranges her own routes, and has nothing to do with any Lecture Bureau.

COMMUNICATION.

Carver Aug. 30th.

ED. VALLEY HERALD:—The farmers of Carver County, have after a few weeks of more than usual toil harvested, and are now engaged threshing, one of the best crops ever grown in this county both as regards quantity and quality, the yield is immense, and with prospect for remunerative prices our farmers look cheerful.

Several of our citizens propose uniting with Chaska, Shakopee, Jordan, Bakely, Henderson, and other places, in a "Harvest Home" to be held at Belle Plaine, on Thursday Sept. 5th. We think it will be made a very enjoyable occasion for those attending.

The people of Carver have this day purchased four lots, and have by voluntarily subscription raised an amount of money sufficient to erect a "Town Hall" 28 by 60 feet, and will have it completed in time for the County Fair, to be held at this place on the 20 and 21st of Sept., and which we believe from present indications will be a grand success. The Hon. E. M. Wilson of Minneapolis, will deliver the annual address, on the occasion. Our thanks are due to the directors for securing the aid of the gentleman named.

We would again earnestly invite the farmers of this, and adjoining counties, to bring specimens of all kinds of farm produce to the fair for exhibition, if not for competition, there will be ample room for all.

Believing as we do that the soil of our county cannot be excelled. Nor do we know of a better medium of advertising the true value of our land than by exhibiting specimens of the produce thereof.

Our streets are fairly crowded with teams delivering grain at the several warehouses.

E. Holmes is about building a large elevater near the Depot of the Minneapolis and Saint Louis R. R. giving facilities at this place for handling and shipping grain.

Mr. Greeley's Religious Tolerance.

From the Cincinnati, Chronicle.

Every religious persecution is a crime, but in this country it is an abomination. That is the very thing which many of our European Democrats and many of our home partisans do not understand. Horace Greeley, however, did, and does understand this principle.
As a statesman and journalist he was obliged to respect and support it, and so he has invariably done. As a journalist, Mr. Greeley took invariably the side of the persecuted and wronged denomination, Jewish, Catholic, Mormon or heathen. We, for our part, would not vote any man into high position who manifested a spirit of persecution at any time. We did not vote for President Grant on account of his notorious order
No. 11. We could not possibly vote for
Mr. Wilson, because, as a Know-Nothing, he hated and persecuted foreigners and Catholics, and at the first occasion offering in the Senate of the United States, he proved a vulgar Jewhater. We would never cast our vote for any person identified with intolerance and injustice, because he is unfit to be the banner-bearer of liberty, and unsound, either in his judgment or his moral character. We vote neither for the demagogue nor the idiot, and the intolerant politician proves to be either.
It is with particular pleasure, however,
that we shall vote for Horace Greeley;
not merely on account of his superior intelligence, statesmanship, and stern honesty, but also because he has proved himself invariably just, tolerant, and liberal to all sorts of people and all classes of ideas. That is the truly democratic type of manhood. These are the particular graces of an American statesman to command our respect and confidence.

THE REFORM MOVEMENT.

The Reform movement is in entire accord with all the higher and nobler impulses of man's better nature. In seeking to clasp hands across the bloody chasm of war, it holds that forgiveness, magnanimity, and kindness are the true weapons of peace—far more potent than the sword. It is the Christian doctrine of love—a unity of sympathy and interest—a restored and lasting fraternity.
It holds that the strife is over, and that it should come brotherhood. That law is superior to arbitrary power—that hate and contention are even elements of weakness—and that it is ever better to suffer and forgive than to do positive wrong. Seven years have been given up to terrorism. Let us now have four years of justice and law, and no longer try the experiment of pinning the Union together with bayonets. It has failed disastrously, as might have been anticipated. It is not bands of steel, but real friendship, that ties great nations together.

Congressional Convention.

Chris Graham Nominated.

The "mountain" has labored and brought forth a candidate—in the person of the Hon. Christopher Graham, of Red Wing, Goodhue County. Such is the result, now as to proceedings of the Convention.

The convention met at Farmington, was called to order by the Chairman of the Congressional Committee, Capt. Sencerbox, and Col. (?) T. O'Leary was selected as temporary and permanent chairman, with Geo. Walsh as Secretary. As to the appointment of committees we will not speak—suffice it to say that the convention met at 12 o'clock and was engaged in a wrangle over motions, propositions &c., from that hour until after dark before a ballot was reached, when it was found that Col. Baxter had received 37 votes, Batchelder 29; Graham, 8—this notwithstanding Col. Baxter had been opposed, by honorable and dis-honorable means, by all the old worn out political hacks in the district, such as Segrave Smith, of Dakota, Michael Doran, of Le Sueur, W. W. Phelps of Goodhue and others equally notorious. On the 2d direct ballot Michael Doran withdrew Batchelder's name and urged and beseeched his friends to support Chris Graham, which they did, nominating him by the vote of 42 to 30 for Baxter.

Mr. Graham is a resident of the eastern portion of the district, while his republican opponent resides in the Minnesota Valley, whether this fact will have any weight in the canvass we know not. The eastern portion of the district is republican, while the central and western portion is democratic—so that to be elected Mr. Graham must expect to poll the democratic vote of the Valley counties and gain large number of republican ballots in his section of the district. As it now stands he has our support and best wishes for an election.

STATE CONVENTIONS.

The Democratic and Liberal Republican Conventions, assembled at the Opera House and Jagersoll Hall, in Saint Paul, on Wednesday last, and nominated the strongest and ablest State ticket that has ever been presented to the suffrage of the people of the State of Minnesota. It is as follows:

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS.

At Large—Eugene M. Wilson, of Hennepin; Ara Barton, of Rice. First District—Thomas Wilson, of Winona. Second District—Harold Thorson, of Rice. Third District—A. C. Morrill, of Hennepin.

STATE TICKET.

For State Auditor—Albert Scheffer, of Ramsey. For Clerk of Supreme Court—James George, of Olmsted.

Proceedings Mass Convention.

Pursuant to notice a Mass Convention was held at Waconia on the 24 day of Sept. 1872. M. H. Ilitis was chosen temporary chairman and H. J. Peck, Secretary.

Committees were appointed by the chair on permanent organization, on resolutions and nominations. The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of M. H. Ilitis, chairman of the convention and Jas. Thos. Kerker Secretary.

The said committee further reported a committee of five Liberal Republicans, one from each County District, to act in connection with the Democratic County committee for the future, the joint committee for the next year consisting of the following members:

Robert Patterson, Julius Schaler, Jos. Weismann, Stephen Kult, Spencer Blacketter, Louis Rausch, J. G. Macintosh, Henry Schrau, Peter Barthel and M. H. Ilitis.

The following resolutions were adopted by the committee on resolutions and adopted.

Resolved—That we the independent thinking citizens of Carver county, hereby dissolve all our connections with all former political organizations and will organize as a new party under the name of "Liberal Reform Party of Carver county" for the purpose of effecting reform in our politics wherever needed.

Resolved—That the first step to such reform we consider to be the election of Greeley and Brown as President and Vice President and the realization of the principles laid down in the platform of Cincinnati and Baltimore.

Resolved—That we are in full sympathy with all the great national reform movements of the day, that we believe it the only safeguard of a free people regardless of party ties or associations to see that all public officers whether National, State, or County officers are representing honesty and ability.

L. Streukens was then nominated by acclamation for the position of County Auditor and Hon. C. H. Lineau for State Senator.

The convention then adjourned sine die.

Important R. R. News.

We are informed from perfectly reliable authority that the H. & D. and the Minneapolis Roads are perfecting arrangements for the transfer of freight and passengers at this place, and that new tracks and platforms will be built at once, at or near the crossings of the roads, in order to carry the project into effect. Good.

A CARD.

My best wishes and thanks to the members of the Chaska Brass-band and all other friends, who visited my house last Friday night, the 6th of September, to discourse sweet music in honor and memory of the Saint, whose name is selected as patron of my clerical life. The Band deserves all respect for improving so rapidly in so short a time. One hundred years after date they may learn a new song amongst the angelical choir, and play without end!

Catholic Pastor of Chaska.

PERSONAL.—Lucien Warner of our village, returned home last week from N. Y. whether he had been on business connected with the Court House matter. He purchased the same for the town of Chaska, who in turn have made a proffer of the building to the county, to be used for county purposes, as long as the county seat remains at Chaska.

County Fair.

We wish to again remind our farmers and all others taking interest in Fair matters, that our county Fair will be held at Carver on Friday and Saturday of next week, and it is expected that it will far surpass anything of the kind heretofore held in Carver County. The citizens of Carver have generously built a good building for that purpose, which will add materially to the convenience of those having articles to display. Hon. E. M. Wilson will deliver the address.

Legislative Nomination.

The Democratic and Liberal convention, which met in convention at Waconia on the 2d of Sept. last, nominated Mathew Kelly of Hollywood for the House. It is in our opinion a very fortunate nomination, worthily bestowed.—Mr. K. is an old citizen of the district, and has held several local offices of trust and honor and is now county commr. from the 5th district, serving a second term. We hope and expect that he will be elected by a large majority, and can assure the people of that district that he has the ability and will to represent them faithfully in the Legislature next winter. Give him a rousing majority.

State Fair.

We are informed by officers of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Road, that articles for exhibition at the State Fair, on the line of their road, will be transported by the said road free of charge. A building will also be erected by the company for the display of all articles so sent. We hope to see the county of Carver well represented in the coming State Fair.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

The County board were in session all last week, their time being mostly occupied equalizing the assessment rolls between the different towns.

The town of Chaska made the board a proffer of the Deed for the County building and grounds, for use as long as the county seat remains at Chaska.—The board took the matter under advisement and referred the same to the County Attorney to report upon the legality of the deeds, after which they adjourned to meet on the 19th of September, when the matter will be finally settled.

OUR TICKET.

We shall "display" our ticket in full at the head of our column next week. Time and a pressure of work has prevented our doing so this week.

GRAND CONCERT.—We are requested to state that the St. Paul "Maencher" assisted by the Great Western Band of that city, will give a Grand Operatic concert at Concordia Hall on Saturday evening next the 14th inst. A grand time is expected.

LOCAL ITEMS.—Rain fell in copious quantities on Tuesday and Wednesday, bad for threshers.—Roads and streets are very muddy and disagreeable for pedestrians.—This is bad weather for our brick-manufacturers, yet they persevere.—Kenning & Sons, are running their saw and door manufactory, and are turning out good work.—Balls are plenty and money scarce, stay at home and save your pennies.

The new Railroad time cards will appear in next weeks HERALD, duly corrected.

We are informed by Mr. J. Strait, of Jordan, that the steam mill will be put in repairs at once, and that they will commence running within three weeks from date.

EXCURSION TRAIN.—We are requested to announce that an excursion train will leave Chaska for Young America, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock a. m. The train will leave the H. & D. depot. The train will return on Monday morning. A good time is expected.

WHEAT! WHEAT!!—Fred Wommer wishes us to announce to the farmers of Carver county, that he will hereafter purchase wheat, and that he will pay the highest cash market price therefor. Give him a call.

CELEBRATION.—The Pioneer "Maencher" Singing Society of Young America, celebrate the 12 yearly organization of their Society, and will be assisted by the Great Western Band of Saint Paul. REMOVED.

We regret to learn that Wm. Glitschka of Carver has permanently left our County and will hereafter follow the mercantile business in Minneapolis.—His store at Carver will however be conducted by Peter Torrisson who will keep the store well stocked and hope to retain the old customers of Mr. Glitschka.

The store at Carver will be continued upon the cheap cash system; and as it is well known that Mr. Glitschka has always kept the best articles in his trade, and sells the cheapest, it is a very desirable place to trade. He is thankful for the patronage he has heretofore received, and hopes it will continue.

SECOND REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT CONVENTION IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF CARVER.

Schneider in the town of Benton in the County of Carver on the 16th day of Sept. next at 10 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Representative to be supported at the next ensuing election.

Said District is composed of the Towns of Carver, Benton, Dahlgren, Hancock, San Francisco and Young America.

Destiny.

BY LUCIA MARIE SPENCER.

Great marvel that we dare to love!
To risk our chance for happiness;
To stake all joy, and nothing less,
On that which may unworthily prove!

For one frail link that gains the shore,
Alas! we know there is no lack
Of many who are driven back,
And sink at last, to rise no more.

We spend a day to gather flowers,
Nor dream that winter draws nigh;
We raise a throne, and place on high
Some mortal heart, as weak as ours.

Our paths in life do separate,
And suddenly between us, we Find miles and miles of land and sea,
So are we ever slaves to fate.

Oh, hark ye, grim death may call—
With beating heart, in that last hour,
We feel and own his cruel power,
And yield to him our earthly lot.

Oh, worse than this, oh, there comes a day
To many a loving one, whose eyes
Are opened with a rude surprise,
To find the lid is but clay.

From tangled paths we look above,
To where, at last, all pain shall cease;
We think upon that promised "peace,"
And marvel that we dare to love.

A CLOCK WONDER.

During the summer of 17— might have been observed looking at a clock in a quiet, shabby, old-fashioned house, past the prime of life, restless and disconcerted in its movements, but wearing, in spite of its humble garb, an air of faded respectability and character.

It was the clock of the great Frenchman, Don Monseigneur Chavari, by name, and one thing noticeable about him was his presidency in endeavoring to obtain admission to the clock.

In every attempt, either through accident or the suspicious of the attendants, he invariably received his rebuffs in silence and withdrew—only to renew his importunities. Repeated today, to-morrow found him at his post. He haunted the palace like a specter. Even the gamins who grew familiar with the story of his hopeless quest, and he began to treat him with that sort of pitiful consideration which is usually accorded to those of unusual mind.

At length, however, came a day when the Rue de Rivoli, as the Emperor's street is called, was again the scene of a triumphal procession, and a review, a pistol shot was rang out from the corner of the court, and the bullet, whistling through the line of officers, buried itself in a quiver.

The Emperor smiled, and remained silent. Meanwhile, Fouche was receiving a dilemma in his mind. "Who is the man?" he asked himself. "The man who is accustomed to act in dangerous crises. There are situations in which a slight change in the hands of a dangerous man may set things on fire, and in which the ordinary means must be employed to secure apparently trifling results. Fouche adopted the course which seemed at first most expedient, and he was not without consideration of first importance in this instance time."

"Your Majesty?" said he, advancing, and speaking rapidly. "May I request your Majesty to be seated? The importance of a matter which will not admit of a moment's delay."

The Emperor turned in surprise and frowned. "What is the matter?" he asked. "The man who is accustomed to act in dangerous crises. roughed as though by exposure and toil. At his side stood a large lacquer table, supporting an object which Fouche saw at once to be an exact model of the church of the Notre Dame, wrought in metal, in the highest style of the art, and serving evidently as the model for a clock, since just above the folding doors, which were perfect imitations of those which barred the principal entrance to Notre Dame, were two dials, on one of which the hours and minutes were measured, while on the other a long, sweeping hand described the seconds. Fouche, by a natural impulse, noticed the time indicated by the dials. It lacked a few minutes of noon.

Nervously thereafter he started with a nervous alarm as the clock gave a warning note to strike—then suddenly there was a clank of complicated machinery, and the great doors folded slowly inward, disclosing the whole of the gorgeous interior to view.

The music church was decorated as though for some great feast. Banners and hangings of the richest material and most costly workmanship fluttered from the ceiling and flanked from the niches the walls. The aisle was carpeted with tapestry and velvet, and the pillars were encased with gold and blazing with gems. On the opposite side of the great nave two thrones were erected, one being approached by a flight of velvet covered steps, and equipped with cloth of gold and velvet velvet sprinkled with bees.

And now the great hall below struck one with a heavy, reverberating clang, a swell of triumphal music arose, and a mimic procession, clad in gorgeous robes, moved into view from one of the hidden aisles. At the head of the procession walked an old man, wearing a triple crown, who, as the bell tolled the second time, ascended the steps of the smaller throne.

It was the ceremony of the coronation performed by automaton. Napoleon looked on with unusual interest. "Confess Fouche," he said, "that this is as admirable a piece of mechanism as the police system in Paris. There is one mistake, however," he continued. "The great doors of Notre Dame were not open in that occasion. The throne was built against them, and the only entrance was through the transverse hall."

"True, sir," said the fictitious artisan, casting a side glance at Fouche, whose name he had just learned. "The throne was built against them, and the only entrance was through the transverse hall."

moved his hand from the spring, and howling his hand, glided toward the door. Just upon the threshold he turned in sudden dismay.

"Where shall I find my daughter?" asked Chavari.

"I will show you, and we will send Monsieur word," answered Fouche.

An expression of the most intense indignity flashed across the old man's face, and with an oath he sprang back toward the table in the room. A pistol confronted him.

"The pardons are forfeited!" cried Fouche.

"No," said the emperor, "let him pass!"

Chavari, with a look of wonder, wheeled slowly about and disappeared.

After his departure, Napoleon stood for a short time in the centre of the apartment, looking at the clock.

Then, as his gaze fell upon the clock and the automaton standing beneath the suspended crown within, he bent forward and regarded it intently.

"He said 'this was to have been my successor,'" he murmured.

It scarcely necessary to add that the clock proved an examination, to be an exact model of the church of the Notre Dame, wrought in metal, in the highest style of the art, and serving evidently as the model for a clock, since just above the folding doors, which were perfect imitations of those which barred the principal entrance to Notre Dame, were two dials, on one of which the hours and minutes were measured, while on the other a long, sweeping hand described the seconds. Morning's Plagues.

By CORNELL WILLIAMS LAWES.

Yellow sunshine on the meadows
Of the daffodils dew-drops
And with warm, glowing measure,
Bills each lifted drowsily.

Sun-crowned morning!
Day's adorning!
Thy golden gates are opened up,
And, trembling o'er thy shining threshold,
The echoes of morning bells,
That break on strands of summer glories,
In field, in grove, and blooming dell,
Golden hours!

Sun-filled flowers!
A "perfect day" thy brightness tells!

Tis nightfall, and upon the meadows
Falls the tempest-driven rain,
And the sweets that filled the morning
Silent in the sad mist wane.

Sun-filled flowers!
Thy promises were made in vain.
O! Sent of Youth! the golden dawning
Does not always tell the day.

For the skies may miss the moment,
Though they may wear the hue of May,
And the dawn of each morning—
Dawn when sunbeams brightly play,
And, O! of Youth! though life's fair morning
Of after days sweet joys allege,
It is but the calm that steth
On the burning embers' edge.

In shadowed hours
In rain-filled dews,
Morning breaks her golden pledge.

THREE BRAVE MEN.

Barney was sitting at his vigil, and so far all had been well. The night was very long, for he had no means of counting the time. At times a thrill went through him, for it seemed as if he could hear a low, suppressed breathing not far away, but he persuaded himself it was the wind blowing through the crevices of the old house. Still it was lonely, and not at all cheerful.

The face in the coffin gleamed whiter through the darkness. The rain-splashed figure had been upon them and snuffed the light. The thought made him shudder. He got up and walked about, but he found that he was behind him, and he put his hand with the back against the wall and sat down again. He had been hard at work all day, and in spite of every thing he grew sleepy. Finally he nodded and snored.

Suddenly it seemed as if somebody had touched him. He awoke with a start, and saw a man in a white shirt, the center of the room stood a white figure. "Curse you, get out of this!" he exclaimed, in a fright, using the words that he had heard long ago. The figure held up its right arm, and slowly approached him. He started to his feet. The specter came nearer, passing him in the corner, cried Barney in his extremity.

"The devil take you," cried Barney involuntarily he stepped back; and the figure advanced, coming nearer and nearer, and extending both arms as if to take him in a ghastly embrace. The hair started up on Barney's head; he grew desperate, and as the gleaming arms would have touched him, he fell upon the floor like a whirling top, kicking and beating more and more at the resistance he met, which told him in his extremity.

As the reader knows, Barney was little, and Fritz was little, and while pummeling the little fellow unmercifully, Fritz was not a bit kinder to the other. He took the wind out of him, both plunging and kicking like horses, they were petrified to hear a voice cry, "Take one of your size, big Barney."

Looking up, they saw a man in a white shirt, sitting up in the coffin. This was too much. They released each other and sprang for the door. They never saw the man in the white shirt, but they ran home like panting stags.

It was Barbara herself who came and opened the door upon Ernest. The next morning.

"It is very early; one more nap," said he, turning over in his coffin.

So she married him; and though she sent Fritz and Barney invitations to the wedding, they did not come. They discovered the trick they kept the knowledge to themselves, and never willingly faced Barbara's laughing eyes again.

Ernest spoke quietly, but his dark blue eyes flashed, and he looked at her intently.

"I want to test you."

"How?"

"I want to see if you dare do a very disagreeable thing."

"What is it?"

"There is an old coffin up stairs. It smells of mold. See that Redmond, the murderer, was buried in it, but the devil came for his body, and left the coffin empty at the end of a week, and it was finally taken from the tomb. It is up stairs in the room my grandfather died in, and they say grandiose does not rest easy in his grave, for the reason—though that I know nothing about. Dare you make that your bed to-night?"

Ernest laughed. "Is that all? I will do it, and sleep soundly. Why, pretty one, did you think I have weak nerves?"

"Your nerves will have a good proof of it yet," Redmond said, and he took one sleep in that wing of the house.

"I shall sleep the sounder."

"Good night, then. I will send you a had to show you, your chamber. If you stay there until morning," said the impertinent Barbara, with a nod of her pretty head, "I will marry you."

"You vow it?"

"I vow it."

Ernest turned straightway and followed the lad in waiting through dim rooms and passages, up echoing stairs, along narrow, damp ways, where rats scolded before them, a glow for number.

The boy looked pale and seared, and evidently wanted to hurry away, but Ernest made him stay until he took a survey of the room by the aid of his hand. It was very large and full of creases, with high windows in them, which were barred across. He remembered that old grandiose Perros had been crazy several years before his death, so that this precaution had been necessary for the safety of himself and others. In the center of the room stood a coffin; beside it was placed a chair, the room was otherwise perfectly empty.

Ernest stretched himself in the coffin. "Be kind enough to tell Miss Barbara that it's a good fit," said he. The boy went out and shut the door, leaving the grandiose alone in the dark. Meanwhile Barbara was talking with the blacksmith in the keeping room.

"Barney," said she, pulling her hands away from his gray when he would have kissed her. "I've a test to put you to before I give you my answer. There is a corpse lying in the chamber where my grandfather died—lying in the unoccupied wing of the house. If you dare sit with it there all night, and let nothing drive you from your post, you will not ask me to marry you in vain."

"You will give me a light and a bottle of wine, and a book to read?"

"All. And if you get frightened you need never look me in the face."

"I'll take them, then."

So Barney was conducted to his post by the lad, who had been instructed in the secret, and whose voluntary stare at Ernest's placid face, as it lay in the coffin, was like a corpse. He took his seat, and the boy left him alone with the darkness, rats, and the coffin.

Soon after young Fritz, the tanner, arrived, flattered and hopeful, from the fact that Barbara had sent for him.

"Have you changed your mind, Barbara?" he asked.

"No. I shall not until I know that you can do a really brave thing."

"What shall it be? I swear I shall satisfy you, Barbara."

THE METIS HORROR.

"I have a proposal to you. My plan requires skill as well as courage."

"Tell me."

"Well, in this house is a man watching every thing that goes on. If you can make him do it, I shall be satisfied that you are as smart and as brave as I require a husband to be."

"Why, nothing is so easy?" exclaimed Fritz. "I can scare him away. I'll furnish him with a sheet, show me the room, and go to your rest, Barbara. You will find me at the post in the morning."

Barbara did as he required, and saw the tanner sleep blithely away at his table. It was then nearly twelve o'clock, and she sought her own chamber.

Barney was sitting at his vigil, and so far all had been well. The night was very long, for he had no means of counting the time. At times a thrill went through him, for it seemed as if he could hear a low, suppressed breathing not far away, but he persuaded himself it was the wind blowing through the crevices of the old house. Still it was lonely, and not at all cheerful.

The face in the coffin gleamed whiter through the darkness. The rain-splashed figure had been upon them and snuffed the light. The thought made him shudder. He got up and walked about, but he found that he was behind him, and he put his hand with the back against the wall and sat down again. He had been hard at work all day, and in spite of every thing he grew sleepy. Finally he nodded and snored.

Suddenly it seemed as if somebody had touched him. He awoke with a start, and saw a man in a white shirt, the center of the room stood a white figure. "Curse you, get out of this!" he exclaimed, in a fright, using the words that he had heard long ago. The figure held up its right arm, and slowly approached him. He started to his feet. NO, THANK YOU.

An invitation to Louisville declined. The Straight Outlets Caught at Tartar in D. G. Bush.

D. G. Bush, one of the leading Democrats of Ohio county, Pa., having been invited to attend the Straight Outlets Convention at Louisville, declined to train in that crowd in the following significant letter:

BEAVER, PA., AUGUST 19.
Mr. William B. Sipes and others, Philadelphia, Pa.

GENTLEMEN: I am in receipt of a printed circular addressed to me, dated Philadelphia, August 18, 1872, and signed by William B. Sipes, Chairman; Charles F. Reinhold, Charles Johnson, Lew. Dugan, Robert F. Christy, Committee of Correspondence, purporting to have been "appointed by a party of Democrats opposed to the sale of the party to Greeley and Brown," held at the Grand House, in Philadelphia, on the 12th inst., inviting me to assist in sending delegates to a Convention to be held at Louisville, Ky., on the 30th proximo. Notwithstanding a some, what extended acquaintance with the prominent men of the Straight Outlets, I regret to inform you that I am unable to co-operate. You say the invitee who constituted you a Committee of Correspondence are opposed to the sale of the party to Greeley and Brown, but you do not give any reasons why they prefer that the conveyance should be made to any other place. You also advise me to bring a letter of three million Democratic votes, "in exchange of a few petty officers," but neglect to inform me what consideration for such transfer would have satisfied you, or what you expect as a compensation for the present movement. I think you are mistaken when you say that many of the whites and colored Democrats in the land will take part with you. Undoubtedly many thousands of our party would have preferred some other nominations than those made at Baltimore, but the action of the National Convention has determined who the candidates of our party shall be, and all pure and wise Democrats will acquiesce.

No personification of a lunatic asylum can imagine that the nominees of the Louisville Convention could by any possibility, be elected. The only object, therefore, in holding the convention, is to distract our party, direct votes from Greeley, and thereby directly assist in the re-election of Grant.

Two classes of men will take part in such a program—the one, natural fanatics adhering to our party, who are always dissatisfied with what the majority does; the other, a class of corrupt politicians who are being chased by the money stolen by Grant's Administration from the people. I therefore think you are mistaken in saying, "the honor of no Democrat can be assisted for participating in such a national assemblage." I see no particular objection in your gentlemen protesting against such a shameful abandonment of principles, and "disgraceful abandonment of political honor," which Judge Black, Judge Woodward, Charles E. Buckner, Hester Clymer, and many other prominent Democrats have refused to do.

As the reader knows, Barney was little, and Fritz was little, and while pummeling the little fellow unmercifully, Fritz was not a bit kinder to the other. POLITICAL MEETING.

The campaign on the part of the Liberals and Democrats, was opened at Carver last Saturday, and was, notwithstanding the weather, a success.

The Hon. E. M. Wilson, candidate for Congress, was introduced to the people in the afternoon, but did not speak at length until evening, when he delivered an able and convincing speech, which brought forth the applause of the multitude. Mr. Graham made a very good impression, indeed.

The Hon. C. H. Lincoln, candidate for State Senator was called upon and acquitted himself very creditably in a speech of upwards of an hour in length. Henry Young Esqr. of Chaska, was called upon, and spoke in German, and from the enthusiasm manifested, we should judge that he delivered a very good speech.

The campaign has opened very favorably in Carver County, and we certainly expect good results in November next.

STATE ELECTIONS.

State elections occur in Pennsylvania, Indiana and Iowa, next Tuesday Oct. 8th. Of these Iowa is conceded to the Grantites, while there is very strong probability that the Liberals will carry both Pennsylvania and Indiana. If such should be the fact, it would virtually decide the fate of the Presidential contest and elect Greeley by an overwhelming electoral vote. We hope for the best.

Over one thousand French emigrants from Alsace-Lorraine have sailed from Havre for Quebec, where they are expected shortly.

Southern Minnesota R. R.

From the Albert Lea Standard.

Hon. A. J. Edgerton, the State Railroad Commissioner, is investigating the management of the Southern Minnesota Railroad Company. He has been on the line about four weeks, taking testimony in regard to the wheat monopoly and other alleged abuses, and is said to be in possession of some very damaging facts. He was here on Tuesday, and took the freight train that evening for Wells, to meet Col. Thompson; the latter gentleman did not respond to the Commissioner's call for a conference, and so Mr. Edgerton returned on the train yesterday, without obtaining the desired explanation.

Simultaneously with this action it is claimed by those who ought to know, that a conference of the bondholders is now being held in New York city, to determine upon a line of action in view of the non-payment of interest, and that ex-Gov. Sherwood, who disapproves of the management, is in council with them. It seems evident that from one or both of these sources, the company will soon be called upon to answer.

Mainly Words.

The gallant confederate, General Gordon, of Georgia, in a recent Liberal speech in that State, said:

"Something has been said about the plank in the platform about doing honor to the Federal soldiers. I assume that in the South, have been taught with it in Georgia by some of my straight out friends, who, if my recollection serves me right, were not very rebellious during the war. They say my blood must have curdled in my veins after consenting to support a candidate standing on that platform as I passed by the battle fields of Virginia where my comrades lay buried. Now I have got this to say about that: I am ready to honor any man who battles in any cause from a sense of duty. I am ready that the North should pile to the very clouds their brave soldiers, and I claim that the higher they pile them the greater tribute they pay to the brave men who held them in check for four years. I enter a sentiment to day which I would gladly utter in Faneuil Hall, Boston, and my speech, I know, would find an echo in the heart of Hancock and all true men who fought on the other side."

Mr. F. W. Bird's paper, the Reform, contains an article examining the various forms of evasive denial in which the Congressmen on Oakes Ames' list have met the recent disclosures of Henry Wilson. It says:

"We examined Gen. Wilson's pretence in 'Coching' to write any one a letter. What with the Robert Hall, Vespasian Ellis, and Askenazy correspondence, he has his hands about full. Gen. Hawley, however, works himself up to unnecessary passion in denouncing 'shredders, gamblers,' &c. Oakes Ames is his man. He put Gen. Wilson's name among the men with whom he had placed or intended to place credit money stacks. What did he mean by it? Let Gen. Hawley put Oakes Ames on the stand; we would like to cross examine him a little."

Mr. Greeley's Tour.

Gov. Randolph of New Jersey telegraphs as follows to the New York World:

"INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 23.—Nothing comparable to the ovation which Mr. Greeley is now receiving here has been seen in the great West since the Harrison whirlwind of 1840. Men who were boys then are now as enthusiastic as boys once were. The presidential family and the presidential managers are better known in the West than in the East. Ohio and Indiana are ablaze with a prairie fire. No money is needed to bring out the supporters of Greeley. They come by the thousands to give assurance of the impending victory. We turn eastward to day, and expect to reach Cleveland on Tuesday night. I repeat that the enemy are for the first time terrified and demoralized. Push them hard and they are gone, horse, foot and dragons. The retreat has begun. We can make, and must make it a rout."

THEODORE F. RANDOLPH.

—The Cincinnati Commercial proposes the following Cabinet as the consistent sequence of Mr. Grant's practice in time gone by:

President—U. S. Grant.
State—Jesse Grant.
Treasury—Cass.
War—Gen. Dent.
Navy—Orville Grant.
Interior—Cramer.
Postmaster—Fred Grant.
Attorney—Judge Dent.

With a Government thus organized, the people could afford to join in a general dance with the beautiful blondes.

THE NEW MILL.

Completed and a Success!!

We have from time to time, through the columns of the HERALD, noted the progress of the new enterprise which forms the subject of this article, and which is of great local importance to the material interest of Chaska.

The building is a frame structure 26 x 36 feet, 2 stories above the basement story, which is of brick, and is built substantial in every particular.

The machinery is first class throughout, of the very latest improvement and from the well known house of E. P. Allis & Co., of Milwaukee, Wis. It has 2 runs of Burs with a capacity of from 13 to 15 bushels per hour of wheat, and is driven by the celebrated Leffel Double Turbine water wheel, with a head and fall of 23 feet of water, with supply amply sufficient to run the Burs 12 hours per day the year round.

Mr. Luther Preston, of Minneapolis, had the contract for the Mill-wright part of the machinery, and which has been fulfilled in the most perfect manner, but which by the way, only adds another feather to his cap, as he has been known these many years as one of the best mill-wrights in the North-west. The cost of the mill, complete is about $10,000, and we hope, as we expect, will prove remunerative to Mr. Michael Bernatz, the enterprising and liberal projector and builder.

The mill will be ready for custom work next Monday, and we are guaranteed by Mr. Geo. Bernatz miller, flour of the very best quality.

No more occasion for farmers carrying their grain to Eden Prairie and Minnetonka, patronize home enterprise.

DEATH OF CHAS. BASLER.—It is our sad duty to record the death of Charles Basler of Carver, and the announcement will be received with deep regret by the citizens of this and adjoining counties.

He died Sept. 30th, at his home in Carver, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Basler was forty three years of age, and has been a resident of this county for the past sixteen years. For a number of years, since 1857, he has kept a hotel in Carver, known as the "Basler House," which is well known to all the old settlers of Carver, Sibley and McLeod counties.

He was an honest man, a true and warm friend, and by his charity, kindness and generosity endeared himself to a large circle of friends. In the early history of this county, while the pioneers were seeking homes in this locality, his house became proverbial for its hospitality to the poor and friendless, and particularly those in trouble, who always received his sympathy and assistance. He was a true representative of the pioneer settler.

He was too generous and charitable to ever become very wealthy, but at the time of his death was possessed of considerable property, sufficient to place his family beyond want in future. We understand that he willed his entire property to his wife.

Mr. Basler held the office of Coroner of this County from 1857 to January last. He refused to have the office longer. Of the thousands of Mr. Basler's acquaintances who will hear of his death none will hear of it without regret. A good man has gone. Peace to his ashes.

County Seat Removal.

Very little has thus far been said upon the subject of the removal of the county seat from Chaska to Benton. This important matter, will under the provisions of a law passed by the last Legislature, come before the voters of this county at the next election, for their consideration and action.

As this county is now the owner of a good court house and jail in Chaska, it does not seem probable that the taxpayers of this county are ready to involve themselves unnecessarily in debt to build other county buildings at Benton.

But even if the people of this county did desire to remove the county seat, such removal should never take place under such a law as the one under which they must now act.

Without stopping to point out all of the defects in the law referred to, (and there are many.) We will call attention to a part of section six which provides among other things that the commissioners may within one month after the approval of the act by the people, "offer proposals for bids to erect a court house and other necessary public buildings at Benton, and to contract therefor, and said Board are hereby specially authorized and empowered to provide means to pay for the same either by levying taxes on the property of the owners thereof or said Board if they deem it most expedient are hereby fully authorized and empowered to issue the bonds of said county to the amount of the costs of said public buildings in a sum not to exceed twelve thousand dollars."

It is plain from the foregoing extract that the county commissioners have the power under the provisions of said act to involve the county in debt to any amount. They can if they please build buildings worth fifty thousand dollars and tax the people to pay for them.

It is true that under the act no more than twelve thousand dollars bonds can be issued; but the commissioners may, and probably would, prefer to levy a tax, for then they are not limited in amount.

If this act should be approved by the people the commissioners could find constant employment and good pay for themselves in looking after the interests of the people during the erection of the court house, and their friends might possibly find fat jobs in the service of the county. But how with the tax payers? Upon them will rest the burden of taxation—if they would escape it they must act in time.

FATHER MEYER.—We are sorry to announce this week, that Father Meyer, Pastor of the Catholic Church, at this place, has made up his mind to sever his connection with the congregation that worships at Chaska, and that he has accepted a call from the Church at New Trevers, Dakota County, and that he will take his departure next week.

Father Meyer, has been connected with the Church at this place some 7 or 8 years, and has been instrumental in building the new Churches at Chaska and Victoria and has always been foremost in all public matters of improvement. He carries away with him, to his new home the best wishes of the entire community. May his future lot be pleasant.

FIRST SHIPMENT.—Messrs. Linen-felder & Faber, made the first shipment of new wheat, to Minneapolis last week. They have shipped up to date, some over 3,000 bushels of No. 1, wheat.

HONEY AND BEES.—Owing to the crowded state of our columns last week, we were unable to mention one of the most notable attractions of our County Fair. We refer to the beautiful honey from the Apiary of J. W. Murray of Chanhassen, and also to a glass case, showing the actions and workings of the bees while forming the combs. Mr. Murray is certainly entitled to the thanks of the people of the county for the interest taken in the cultivation of bees.

SEED WHEAT.—Read the advertisement of Sam Mitchell of Eden Prairie, offering for sale a limited number of bushels of an extra quality of seed wheat for sale. Sample can be seen at this office.

—This line answers our purpose.

Shakopee Soap.

The new manufactory of soap at Shakopee, took the first premium at the late State Fair, notwithstanding the fact that they were brought into competition with the old established factories of East Minneapolis and St. Paul. They certainly have made a good beginning and we expect that they will establish a permanent paying business. We hope our merchants will patronize them.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of Charles Basler, of Carver, was very largely attended, by the citizens of Chaska Carver and vicinity. A tribute justly paid to the remains of an honored citizen.

FLORENCE SEWING MACHINE.—This unequalled machine, took the premium at the late County Fair, and is, as has been proved, capable of doing more work with less improvements than any other machine in the market. It is astonishing how easily Mr. Schwartz, the agent, exhibited the superior qualities of the Machine at the County Fair—how he sewed from paper to broadcloth, from leather to shingles with the same thread, needle and tension.

Mr. Schwartz, the agent, will soon call upon the citizens of the county, and will give them an opportunity to purchase. Advertisement next week.

EVERY WHERE.—The Evening Star Stove is on sale in all the principal towns and cities throughout the South and West. All respectable dealers have them, and consider them their most staple article.

SCHOOL MEETING.—It will be remembered that the annual school meeting will be held next Saturday evening, at the District School House, for the purpose of electing a Board of Trustees and of levying the annual school tax. It is hoped that the meeting will be largely attended and that the result will be satisfactory.

PERSONAL.—John Meyer and family of Lakewood, and Otto Boreau and family of Waconia, left for their future homes in Noble County on Thursday. They carry with them the best wishes of a host of friends, who will rejoice in their prosperity.

STEAM MILL.—The Steam Mill will commence running to-morrow, Friday. Mr. Frank Hamill and Mr. Robert Small are the millers. Geo. Strait will have the business management of the mill.

WHEAT.—A large amount of wheat is being marketed, and only brings from 90 to 95 cents per bushel. We hope to see a rise in the price soon.

STOVES.—Fritz Wommer has just received a very fine assortment of box and parlor stoves. Give him a call.
